My name is Marcus Santer and I have been practicing Qigong for over 12 years and teaching for 9. I am the Author of Shaolin Chi Kung: 18 exercises to help you live a longer, healthier and happier life. And 3 other books on Qigong. I have learned Qigong from various sources over the years, but consider my true teacher to be 4th generation Shaolin Grandmaster Wong Kiew Kit. He has taught me the most by far and is great source of inspiration.

A Guide On How To Find A Great Qigong Teacher

Choosing a Qigong instructor isn’t easy.

Why? Because as soon as you start to take a look at what is available you’re bombarded with misleading advertising, confusing (often outrageous) claims and simply bad information.

And I am the first to agree that if you want to learn high level Qigong and not just Qigong form, and get the best benefits from Qigong then you simply have to learn directly from a great Qigong teacher (preferably) or at least a competent instructor.

But how do you ever find a qualified, competent and professional Qigong teacher?

Start by reading this guide....I wrote it to help you better understand what makes a great Qigong teacher. Armed with this information you will be able to make an informed and intelligent decision.

Finding a Qigong Master or a competent Qigong instructor has always been difficult. Read this short report and discover how to save yourself a massive amount of precious time in your search.
1. Must be an example of what he teaches – Imagine if you were talking to someone wearing dirty clothes, who hadn’t washed in days and looked like they were living on the street and they offered you a plan on how to earn a million pounds – you’d be wise to question the effectiveness of their plan. I mean if it was that good, why are they broke? Same goes for your Qigong teacher. Qigong has been documented over 1000’s of years to bring the following benefits:

   a. Health and Vitality
   b. Longevity
   c. Internal Force
   d. Mind Expansion
   e. Spiritual Cultivation

So if your teacher is in poor health or lacks vitality then you’d do well to question the effectiveness of the Qigong they are teaching. Health and vitality are the lowest level of benefits to be had from Qigong, so if they don’t demonstrate those benefits, it is very unlikely they will demonstrate the others.

2. Be knowledgeable – A good teacher should be able to answer your questions simply and directly. If the answer to your question leaves you feeling more confused than before, chances are you’ve been ‘bamboozled’.

Qigong is not mystical mumbo jumbo – it is founded on the principals of Traditional Chinese Medicine (TCM). And whilst your teacher doesn’t need to be an expert on TCM, they should at least have a rudimentary understanding of the main principals.
3. Systematic with what they teach – I once had a teacher at university who was renowned in the computer industry for being a genius with the components that make up the inside of a computer. And there was no doubting how knowledgeable he was. But he couldn’t teach for toffee. His lessons were unstructured and information was not delivered in a systematic step by step fashion that makes learning easy. As a result I didn’t learn very much at all.

4. Generous with what they teach – As a teacher of Qigong myself it is always a joy to share what I know with enthusiastic students. And my own teacher is the perfect demonstration of this quality often sharing individual techniques with students to help them get even better results from their practice.

5. Be inspirational – I remember asking my teacher what the difference was between a good teacher and a great teacher. The answer was that a good teacher teaches, but a great teacher inspires the student. My teacher is in his 60’s and has more energy and vitality than most people half his age and over the last 10 years, the only illness he has had has been a mild toothache. That’s inspirational.

6. High moral values – Learning Qigong can be a deeply personal experience. You want your teacher to have high moral values. If they sleep with their students, are dishonest or you just feel uncomfortable in their presence (for whatever reason) – then it’s best to look elsewhere.

You’re only going to be able to find out if a Qigong teacher has all of the above qualities after learning from them for a few weeks. So ask if you can go along and observe a class and see what your instincts are telling you. But don’t be surprised if the teacher says no.

That’s not necessarily a bad sign. A Qigong class environment is very calm and peaceful and many teachers do not want a ‘stranger’ in the class because it can be a disruption for the other students. I don’t let potential new students come and observe my classes for this very reason.
In this case ask when they have a new class starting and attend that. You’ll very quickly be able to tell if you’ve found the right teacher. Good teachers of Qigong are rare. If you find one treasure them, practice what they teach you to the best of your ability and live a long, healthy and happy life.

Update

Finding a great Qigong teacher can be hard. It often involves making time, money and travel sacrifices as it’s unusual to find a great teacher living just down the road from you. That’s why in 9 years of learning from my teacher I invested £18,000 and travelled tens of 1000’s of miles in a Boeing 747 just to learn Qigong.

I know that many keen Qigong students are not able to take the time off, invest 1000’s of pounds, dollars or euros, or travel half way around the world on a regular basis like I did. And that’s why I created my 22 week online, Qigong Secrets Home Study Course.

Each new lesson is accessible weekly and over the 22 weeks you’ll receive:

- 214 pages of written material (in Pdf format).
- Over 8 hours of video tuition (Mp4 and streaming).
- 5 powerful bonuses to increase your results.

All of which means if you’re unable to learn directly from a great Qigong teacher this course is the next best thing. For just $4.95 you can take a two-week ‘test drive’ of the home study course to see if it’s suitable for you and your learning style. It’s certainly not everyone’s cup of green tea.

Full details are available here: http://enjoyqigong.com

Enjoy your practice!

Marcus James Santer - Author & Qigong Specialist